AFTERSHOCK

After World War II America was at peace—except for Rosie Riveter; except for the G.I. Bill, which changed higher education; except for Tuskegee Airmen and Brown v Board of Education. This novel examines the changes facing men and women returning from war and its horrors. Set at the architecture school at the University of Alabama.

Zero to Ten: Nursing on the Floor

What's your pain, from zero to ten?
How fast can you run on the floor, from zero to ten?
How soon will you have burnout, from zero to ten?

Taylor takes over forty years of experience in nursing to inspire these stories. She moves from joy to frustration to devastation.
